1. Current Position

Manual Handling is about moving items, either by lifting, lowering, carrying, pushing or pulling. Manual handling injuries are part of a wider group of musculoskeletal disorders (MSD's) which covers injury, damage or disorder of the joints or other tissues in the upper or lower limbs or the back. The weight of the item is an important factor but there are also many other factors which can create the risk of injury, for example the number of times the items are picked up, how close it is held to the body, the distance it may be carried and where it is being picked up or put down. Also, if there is any twisting, bending, stretching or other awkward posture adopted during the task this can add to the risk of injury.

Many of these injuries are cumulative and not caused by any single accident. Poor manual handling invariably leads to these types of musculoskeletal disorders, but many of these injuries can be caused by different work-related factors, such as use of vibrating tools, or repetitive movements over a long period of time.

Earlier we mentioned if you edit your ‘Privacy Settings’, you can share your legal register with others. We are going to show you how you can do that.

Sharing your legal register

By clicking the button in the top right hand corner to 'Shared', a list of all users you have given a login to will appear. Here you can select which users can 'View folder', 'View & add comment' or 'Edit folder'. When you are finished, click 'Update settings' to update what users have access. For legal registers we recommend 'View Only' as this will ensure nothing is accidentally deleted.

New & updated documents

The screenshot shows a web page from the barbour website. At the top, there's a navigation bar with links for 'Latest', 'Explore content', 'My documents & Barbour legal registers' (which has a red circular badge indicating new content), 'My account', 'Help', and a search bar. Below the navigation, a link 'Back to My Documents' is visible. The main content area is titled 'Fire safety Act 2021'. On the left, a sidebar contains five numbered links: 1. Who does this apply to?, 2. When did it change?, 3. What does it mean?, 4. What's changed?, and 5. Document information. Below this is a section titled 'Publisher Information' with details: Publisher: Parliament, Web: www.legislation.gov.uk, Address: 7 Millbank, London, SW1P 3JA. The main body of the page includes the year 'Year: 2021', the series 'Series: Chapter CH 24', and a section titled 'Who does this apply to?' which contains descriptive text about the act's application to building owners, leaseholders, and managers of multi-occupied residential buildings.

Clicking on a document within this folder will direct to a page like this. You can see from the menu on the left that there is a clear summary detailing what the changes are, what they mean, when they have been made and who this affects. This makes it easier for you to determine if this update affects your business.
